National Aging and Disability Transportation Center Launches New Website for Aging, Disability, and Transportation Professionals

Washington, D.C. - The National Aging and Disability Transportation Center (NADTC) unveiled its new website, www.nadtc.org, today. The website is designed to simplify how professionals who serve older adults and people with disabilities find accessible transportation resources.

Transit and other transportation services play a critical role in helping older adults and people with disabilities live full lives in their communities by providing options for access to work, healthcare, and social and recreational opportunities. The nadtc.org website, which includes a broad array of resources and up-to-date information on developments in the transit and human services transportation field, is designed to help communities nationwide in their efforts to increase the availability and accessibility of mobility options for all.

As the newest Federal Transit Administration technical assistance center website, www.nadtc.org includes an information clearinghouse of publications, online community forums, and resources on grant opportunities. Users will be able to register for webinars and courses, find information on mobility options such as transit, taxi, and shared ride services, and download resources.

Make your own connections by exploring www.nadtc.org today!

The National Aging and Disability Transportation Center is funded through a cooperative agreement of Easterseals, the National Association of Area Agencies on Aging, and the U.S. Department of Transportation, Federal Transit Administration, with guidance from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Administration for Community Living. NADTC's mission is to increase accessible transportation options for older adults and people with disabilities nationwide.

The National Association of Area Agencies on Aging (n4a) is a 501c(3) membership association representing America's national network of 622 Area Agencies on Aging (AAAs) and providing a voice in the nation's capital for the 256 Title VI Native American aging programs. The mission of n4a is to build the capacity of its members so they can better help older adults and people with disabilities live with dignity and choices in their homes and communities for as long as possible. Visit www.n4a.org for more information.

For nearly 100 years Easterseals has been the indispensable resource for people and families challenged by disabilities. We offer hands-on, vital programs through our network of affiliates to help people of all ages reach their full potential through development and life skills learning, workforce training and placement services, and fun, healthy recreation programs for children, adults, and caregivers.
